HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 24TH, 1890. THE punishments of the Chinese prisoner into whose death an inquiry was held last week certainly look formidable on paper, He seems to have been a refractory subject whom it was impossible to tame into submission, and he was given three days on rice and water over and over again, sometimes with only one day on full rations intervening between the punishments. The medical officer refused to pass him for corporal punishment, so that the gaol authorities had no choice but that of inflicting other punishment or allowing him to set discipline at defiance. When attacked by dysentery after this long course of meagre diet, he had a deficiency of strength to resist the disease, which he further aggravated by eating an excessive quantity of bread when in hospital, with the result that death ensued. It is not pleasant to think that the punishment to which the deceased was subjected in any way, even indirectly, conduced to his death, but that is what the jury found and what the medical evidence indicated. It does not appear, however, that any one was to blame have with such reasonable orderliness as to earn bis full rations. There is no evidence.

part of the turnkeys or warders, or that his punishments were not fully deserved. Some means must be placed in the hands of the gaol officials for the enforcement of discipline. It would perhaps be better if corporal punishment wore made use of more freely and deprivation of food somewhat more sparingly, but the fact that serious consequences have ensued upon the latter in one solitary instance cannot be taken sa establishing that this form of punishment is used to an unwarrantable or dangerous extent. As a matter of fact, the prisoners in Victoria Gaol are extremely well cared

A very extraordinary remark was made by Dr. CANTLIE, who had been called in to conduct the post mortem examination. CANTELE is nothing if not sensational, and it might have been predicted that the circumstances of such a case as this would evoke some remarkable expression of opinion. He tells us in effect that all the short sentence prisoners in the gaol are being starved, as the amount of food supplied is only sufficient for men at absolute rest, by which he says he means that a man ought almost to be in bed, taking only absolutely necessary exercise. Dr. Avers, the Colonial Surgeon, bas

Dr. CANTLIE, however, who drops the name and quantity of Wine or Spirit wanted, in casually, pronounces off-hand that everything is all wrong, that the food is in sufficient, and inferentially accuses Dr. Ayres of what, if Dr. CANTLIE is correct. must be considered grave misconduct; for it is the Colonial Surgeon who must be held

> if the prisoners are being starved. But what do the figures of disease and death in the Gaol tell us? Last year the total number of prisoners confined in Victoria Gaol was 3,705, and the daily average 581 This number included a large proportion of mendicants (as many as thirty being admitted in one week), none of whom, we read in the Colonial Surgeon's report, were fit to perform. hard labour, and many of whom were ut once out on the sick list. Yet with the large admixture of material of this kind there were in the whole year only four deaths, the total number of admissions to Hospital being 244. The sickness and mortality in the Gaol are, well-cared for troops of the garrison. The Robinson won the 3 0 yards spoon therefore that if the prisoners are starved the treatment agrees with them remarkably well. The diet they get is certainly not a regimen the Chinese Imperial mission to Korea. To the lay mind it is somewhat difficult to understand why desertion should be considered any less culpable in the case of an officer than in that of an AlB. or private.
